

AL HORN'S

Cartoon Collection

You cannot fully live if you are afraid to die for your beliefs

you cannot be free if you are afraid to go to jail in a just cause

you cannot be truly rich if you are afraid to be poor

Al Horn had a habit of collecting cartoons. He would squirrel them away after they had been displayed on the office bulletin board for a while.

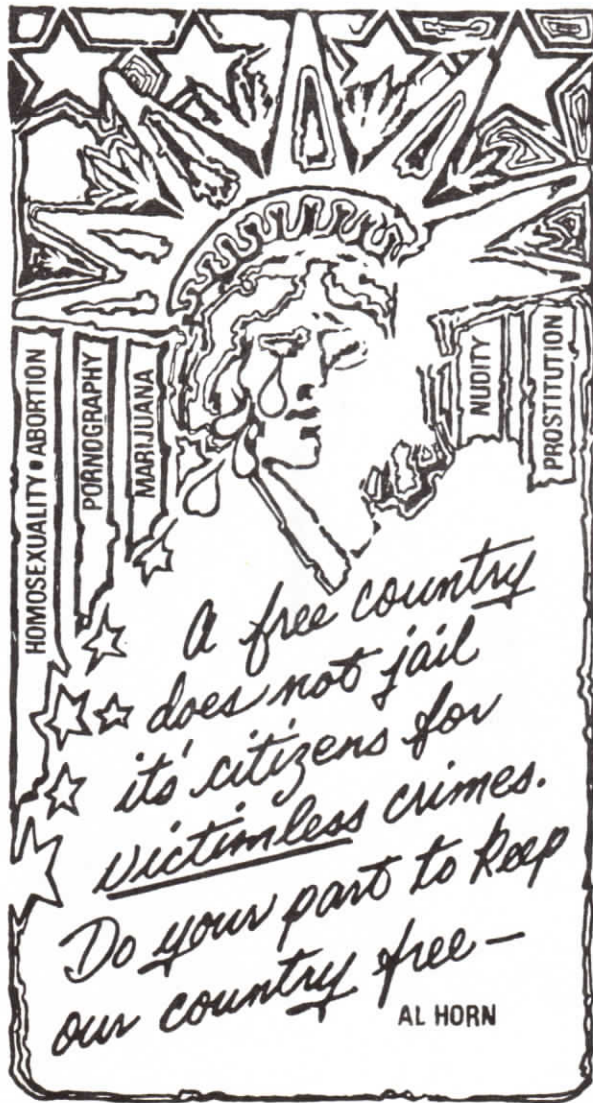

After Al died I found his stash of cartoons and comic strips. The selection reflects Al's general distrust of organized anything and his strong sense of justice. They also reflect a healthy skepticism about lawyers, judges, and the legal system.

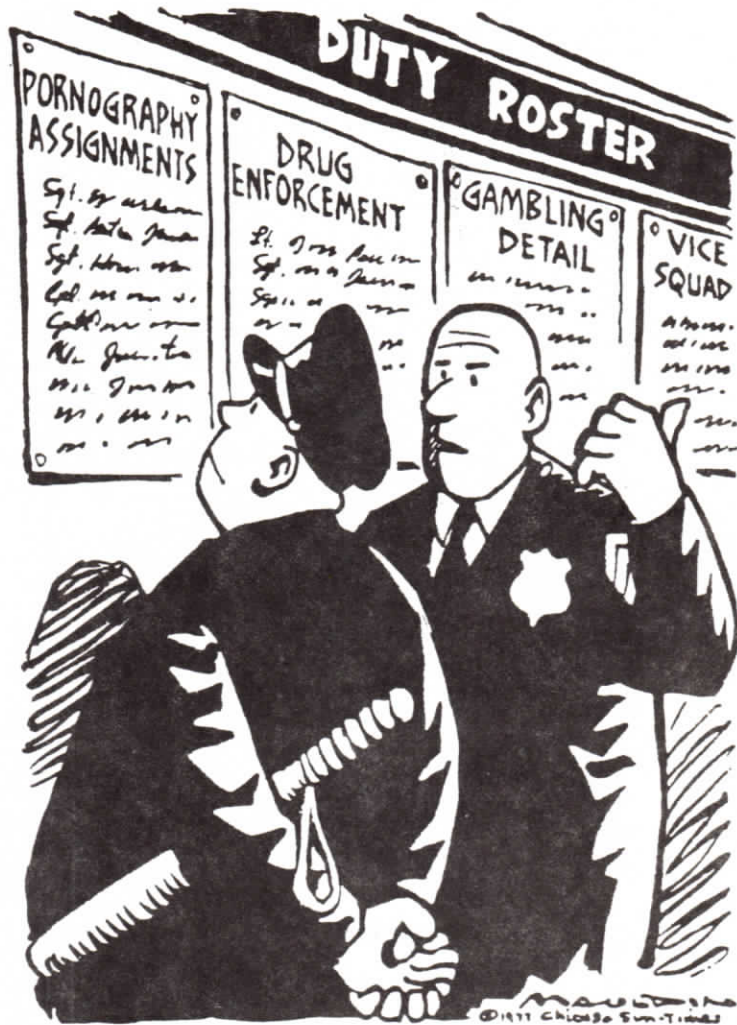

These cartoons are not an enduring tribute to Al Horn. He made that monument in the lives of people he befriended and fought for. However, they are a reminder of one of his best features, his sharp sense of humor.

Elizabeth Abraham deserves the credit for bringing this collection into print. She did all the layout and graphics and kept the momentum going to see it completed.

Read it. Enjoy it. Think of Al and with your spirit fortified; resist those forces that try to ignore human suffering in favor of precedent, tradition and consistency.
